The first Hong Kong version of this internationally known work; written by the best construction lawyers in the region.

For over 135 years, construction professionals have relied on Emden's construction law, not only in the United Kingdom but across the globe. Now for the first time, LexisNexis bring you Emden's Construction Law, Hong Kong, a fully localised version of the title. This substantial work offers comprehensive coverage on the entire gamut of Construction Law. The Hong Kong version has been painstakingly adapted for the dynamic Hong Kong construction environment, with contributions from over 20 leading construction practitioners.
About Emden’s Construction Law Hong Kong

Emden’s Construction Law Hong Kong has been much anticipated by the Hong Kong construction law community, and contributed to by some of its most prominent members. Based on the original English work by Crown Office Chambers the Hong Kong version contains 27 chapters of detailed guidance, and is unparalleled in its local insight. For the first time it brings together UK and Hong Kong references, offering a truly complete resource which is tailored to local needs.

Contents cover the many changes and local specificities that have occurred in the 20 years post-handover. These changes include a huge growth in local case law, the introduction of the NEC, a move towards different standard contract terms, and a boom in ambitious construction projects across the region. Whilst traditionally construction lawyers might have relied on imported UK publications there is now sufficient divergence in law and practice to make a local version a necessity. Thus, LexisNexis are delighted to bring to market this most necessary of Hong Kong works.

Emden’s Construction Law Hong Kong will be invaluable to all solicitors, barristers, architects, surveyors and other professionals concerned with construction law. It is comprised of two volumes, and is updated three times per year.

Emden’s Construction Law: A History of Firsts

1882

The original Emden’s text is written by Alfred Charles Richard Emden, a barrister and County Court judge, predating all the other major works on the subject in the United Kingdom.

1991

The 8th edition of Emden’s is published, the first to be presented in more than one volume, in looseleaf format.

2011

Crown Office Chambers largely rewrite the commentary for Emden’s for its 9th edition, and the number of volumes in it are reduced from five to two.

2015

Dr Arthur McInnis begins work on localising Emden’s for Hong Kong.

2017

Emden’s Construction Law Hong Kong launches.
